DEDICATION.

To all who have aided me in acquiring information in the preparation of this work, this volume is dedicated.

INTRODUCTION.

The late George Haines, M. D., of Medford, N. J., commenced the collection of genealogical notes of different families in the early twenties of the last century, when he began to practice medicine, and settled in what was at that date Evesham Township; considerable of which was obtained from persons then living, which otherwise would not have been obtainable at this time.

The bulk of the work is from his notes, and his earnest desire that his notes might be preserved in book shape for the benefit of the generations that would follow has induced the compiler to offer to the public the genealogy of the Stokes family.

The compiler has endeavored to collect what could be had from the family, together with what he could conveniently get from records and other sources, to make the work as complete as he possibly could in all the branches. He has found from records that some information given him is incorrect, and has corrected it. There may still be some errors unknown to the compiler, which in a work of this kind are generally found, yet upon the whole, the work will be found to compare favorably with other similar genealogies in that respect.

The average reader of the present day has but a very indefinite idea of the difficulties encountered in the preparation of a work of this character as to its correctness.

We offer the work, such as it is, with its defects and limitations, and trust that it may, with the same fraternal spirit in which it is offered, meet the approval of a generous public.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

The arrangement of the work is by generations, and the names of the children in each generation, who married, are carried forward as parents in the following generation.

The small numerals placed at the head of each name denote the generation to which each individual belongs, counting from Thomas Stokes, the progenitor of the family as number one. They also denote the person carrying the Stokes blood.

The abbreviations are: b., born; d., died; m., married; dau., daughter; bro., brother; p., page; S. P. sine prole, without issue.

Dates, as to the months, previous to the N. S., that are given in numbers, are unknown to the compiler, as he has given them as they were on the notes.

In tracing the trunk-line of ancestry of anyone, or of a family, it will be readily done by following back from generation to generation the page numbers on the margin, set opposite to the parents of each and every family.

The ancestry of persons who have married into the different families—whenever their ancestry could be traced—will be found to follow each family into which such person or persons have married.

An interrogation (?) following a name, or sentence, indicates that the writer is not certain as to the correctness of the name or sentence, either by himself or his informant.

The index includes the seventh generation and a part of the eighth. The balance of the eighth and the ninth will be readily found from the index of the parents.

There were no marriages of the name of Stokes found on the records of the following meetings, which were also examined: Bedfordshire, Hertfordshire, Berkshire, Oxfordshire, Northamptonshire, Essex, Surrey, Yorkshire, Cambridgeshire, Huntingdonshire, Durham, Warrickshire, Leicestershire and Rutland, Buckinghamshire, Cheshire and Staffordshire, Cornwall, Cumberland and Northumberland, Derbyshire and Nottinghamshire, Devonshire, Lincolnshire, Lancashire, Norfolk and Norwich, Suffolk and Westmoreland.

From Burke's standard work of the landed gentry of Great Britain, this family is of Norman origin, and claims to be a branch of the ancient and illustrious house of Montespedon, now believed to be extinct in Normandy.

From old documents it appears that its ancestors must have come to England after the conquest, when honors and possessions were assigned them.

Their history, however, is not uninterrupted by times, until the time of Edward II, when we find by records in the Tower, that Sir Adam De Stokke was seized of the manor of Stokke, Rustaball and Wilts.

Thomas, his eldest son, held the manor of Sendee with other lands in Wiltshire, and Roger, his second son, the manors of Wolshall, Sanarnagrit and Hungerford, in the same county. The late Roger, with his father, Sir Adam, were interred in the church of Great Bedwin, to which they had been benefactors, where their monuments and effigies are still to be seen. John, a descendant of Thomas, represented the county in Parliament in the time of Charles II. In the reign of Elizabeth, we find the Stockys (the first change in the orthography of the name) erected the chapel or church of Sendee, and lies there interred. In the fifteenth century, Cristopher Stokes (when the name finally changed) held the manors of Stanhawes with other lands in Gloucestershire. Edward Stokes held part of the manor of Fetherton and lands at Langley Burrell in Gloucestershire later. John Stokes held the manor of Stanhawes Court, Cardington, with other lands in the same county about A. D. 1700.

Richard Stokes, of Caln Castle, Wilts, held considerable possessions in the counties of Gloucestershire and Bucks.

Some of the family enjoyed lands in Sussex and Kent, and within the last fifty years possessed considerable property in the counties of Wilts, Gloucestershire and Warwick. The arms of the Stokes family—A lion rampant, doubled Gnewed erm Crest. A dove with wings expanded; in the mouth an olive branch, all ppr. Motto: Fertis qui insons.

Thomas Stokes, the immediate progenitor of the Stokes family in America, was a contemporary of George Fox, the religious reformer and founder of the Society of Friends, and of William Penn, who was associated with the trustees of Edward Byllinge, the original proprietor of New Jersey, and the founder of the Province of Pennsylvania. He was sixteen years younger than the former, and four years older than the latter; a convert to their religious doctrines and toleration, with the largest liberty for individual belief; but like all pioneers and propagandists desiring to avoid persecution, and seeking new fields of labor, he concluded to remove to the colonies of America, and seek his fortune on this continent.

His brother John, of London, having large interests in proprietary rights bordering on the Northampton River, he settled on a part of the tract conveyed to him by his brother. This conveyance of John to his brother Thomas is said to be the only portion of his proprietary interest ever disposed of in any way by him, and was no doubt the whole location. Thomas located three hundred acres of land fronting on the northerly side of the Northampton River, and a portion of the tract remains in the family, having passed down from father to son by will.

Thomas Stokes was a man of influence, and took a very active part in the affairs of the colony. We find from the records of the colony that he served on the first grand jury held in Burlington County.

His wife dying in 1699, he removed to Waterford Township, Gloucester County, and resided there with his son Thomas until his death, in mo. the 11th, 1720. On January 21st, 1719, he conveyed the tract of land he purchased of his brother John to Abraham Hewlings, Jr., which deed is of record in the Secretary's office, in Trenton, New Jersey. He left a will dated October the thirteenth, 1719, which shows that he had but five children—three sons and two daughters. (See his will, pages 9 and 10.) The personage frequently spoken of by the family, supposedly as the son of Thomas Stokes the first, and so mentioned in Judge Clement's "First Emigrant Settlers," who settled in North Carolina, was Benjamin Stokes, the son of Thomas Stokes the second, and so mentioned in his will.

FIRST GENERATION AND CHILDREN.

Thomas Stokes, of Lower Shadwell, and Mary Bernard, of Stepney, were married the 30th day of the 10th month, 1668, Westbury Street Friends' Meeting, London. They belonged to Devonshire House Meeting.

Thomas and his family sailed for America in the ship "Kent," and arrived at New Castle 6th month, 1677, proceeded to Burlington, West New Jersey, and settled on a tract of land containing one hundred sixty-two and a half acres. The deed for the same was from his brother, John Stokes, of Wentworth street, London, who was a biscuit baker, etc., who owned a great many acres of land in Northampton Township, Burlington County, New Jersey. Thomas named the location Stokingham. He was one of the signers of the laws and concessions of West New Jersey.

¹Thomas Stokes, married 10-30, 1668, Mary Bernard.

Children were—

¹Sarah, b. ; m. 1693, Benjamin Moore.

²Mary, b. ; married 1696, John Hudson.

²John, b. 1675; m. 1712, Elizabeth Green.

²Joseph, b. ; m. , Judith Lippincott, 1st wife.

m. , Ann Haines (widow), 2d wife.

²Thomas, b. 1682; m. 1704, Deliverance Horner, 1st wife.

m. 1715, Rachel Wright, 2d wife.

Mary, his wife, deceased 1699.

Benjamin Moore, who married ²Sarah Stokes, came from Birmingham, Lincolnshire, England, to New Jersey, and was the progenitor of the Moore family. He is said to have been the largest land-holder in New Jersey. Moorestown derives its name from him.

Elizabeth Green (known as Lady Green), the wife of ²John Stokes, was the dau. of Thomas Green and Elizabeth, and granddaughter of Arthur Green, of Bug Brook, a Parish of England, county of Northampton. She came to America with Dr. Daniel Wills, whose care she was placed in by her father. She had two brothers—John and Thomas. Her father was displeased with her marriage to John Stokes, and disinherited her. Her brother John came to America at the instance of her father, and took charge of her father's interest and investments in New Jersey.

Judith Lippincott, the first wife of ²Joseph Stokes, was the dau. of Freedom Lippincott and Mary Curtis.

Freedom was the son of Richard Lippincott and Abigail, who came from Stonehouse, a Parish of England, in Devonshire, and were the progenitors of the Lippincott family in New Jersey. They first settled in Massachusetts in 1639, and returned to England in 1652, and in 1670 came to America the second time, and settled at Shrewsbury, New Jersey.

Ann Haines (widow), the second wife of ²Joseph Stokes, was the dau. of John Ashard, and widow of John Haines, the son of Jonathan Haines and Mary Matlack, the dau. of William Matlack and Mary Hancock, the progenitors of the Matlack family. Jonathan Haines was the son of John Haines and Esther Borton, the dau. of John Borton and Ann, the progenitors of the Borton family. John was the eldest son of Richard Haines and Margaret, the progenitors of the Haines family, who came from Aynhoe, a Parish of England, in the county of Northampton.

WILL OF ¹THOMAS STOKES.

I, Thomas Stokes, of Waterford, in ye county of Gloster and Province of New Jersey, being weak of body but of sound mind, Praised be God, and being willing to settle in order all my concerns in this world, Do make and constitute this my Last Will and Testament in manner following, hereby revoking and making Null and Void all former and other Wills, and Wills Testament and Testaments by me heretofore made, and I do declare this to be my last Will and Testament, Recomending my Soule to God and my body to be buried at the discretion of my Executors hereinafter mentioned.

Imprimis—I give and bequeath unto Mary Stokes, the daughter of my son, John Stokes, 7 pounds and 10 shillings money according to our late Queen Royal's proclamation, to be paid her when she shall arrive at the age of 18 years or be married, or which shall happen first, and if it happens that she dies before married or comes to that age, that then the legacy given to her shall go to her next oldest sister. I give and bequeath unto Lydia Stokes, the eldest daughter of my son, Thomas Stokes, my bed and bedding and Furniture thereunto belonging, and if she happens to die before she be married, then this said legacie to go to Deliverance Stokes, daughter of my said son, Thomas Stokes. Item—I give unto Joseph Stokes son of my aforesaid son Thomas Stokes a new strait bodyied coat. Item—I give and bequeath unto my son Joseph Stokes one mare and all my wearing apparel except ye coat before given to my grandson Joseph Stokes. Item—I give and bequeath to my son Thomas Stokes my pair of oxen and all other my horned cattle. Item—I give unto my daughter Sarah my grate Bible. I do also appoint nominate constitute and make my son John Stokes my executor of this my last Will and Testament, and after my debts be paid if any be, and my Funeral charges defrayed, all the above legacies mentioned discharged according to the true intent and meaning of this my last Will, I do give and bequeath all the remainder of my money unto my sons John Stokes and Joseph Stokes and Thomas Stokes and to my two daughters Sarah and Mary to be equally divided among all them five.

In Witness Whereof, I hereunto set my hand and affix my seal this thirteenth day of October Anno Domino 1719.

CHARLES STOKES, A. D. 1903.

Certainly there are few who believe that the mere act of Jacob's coming near and kissing his old and decrepit father, and the use of any particular words to him, by that old man, had any influence in compelling others "to serve him; to bow down before him; or be acursed if they did otherwise." But rather that that little comedy was inserted in the book of Genesis to record Jacob's intense desire to be, after Isaac's death in possession of that little spark that had lighted the life of his father, and made him cherished above his brother, Ishmael, and Abraham before him, and made him cherished above Lot, his uncle's son. And Terah, too, before him, and made him preferred above his brother Haran. And what in fact made the Israelites, despite all their ills and short-comings, the cherished by God, and the honored by all nations.

This is Charles Stokes' peculiarity. He, like the patriarchs of old, is a descendant of a long line of cherished and honored ancestry. And as his portion, he has inherited that little spark; that certain something; that invisible, yet ever present and all-pervading power, that raises up and throws down who it will. That makes honored, or dishonored, whoever and whenever suits its strange fancy. Without which none are great, and with which none are mean.

View him as you will, there cannot be found in him any one art; any faculty; any ability to do a particular thing in a peculiar way, whereby those who rise in the world usually climb into a place above their fellows. And yet, without wealth, without office, and without title, he has risen to that place of prominence where he is one of the foremost citizens of his county and State.

As Abram became Abraham, so is he the honored Charles Stokes.

WILLIAM PARRY.

William Parry, who married ^eAlice Stokes, was the son of John R. Parry and Letitia Penn Smith, the dau. of Thomas Smith and Letitia Blackfan. Thomas was the son of William Smith and Rebecca Wilson. William was the son of William Smith, who came from Yorkshire, England, and Mary Croasdale, the dau. of Thomas Croasdale and Agnes. John R. Parry was the son of John Parry and Elizabeth Roberts. John was the son of John Parry and Margaret Tyson. John was the son of Thomas Parry, who came from Carnarvonshire, a county of North Wales, in 1680, and Jane Morris, whom he married in 1715. Thomas was the son of Love Parry and Ellen Wynn, of Carnarvonshire, Wales. Love was the son of Colonel Geoffrey Parry, of Rhydo-lion, Carnarvonshire, Wales (officer of King Charles I, 1625). William Parry settled at Cinnaminson, New Jersey, where he founded the Pomona Nurseries, the most extensive in the State, comprising something over three hundred acres. He was a practical civil engineer, surveyor, conveyancer, and did much other public business. He was elected to the legislature in 1854, and re-elected the following two years, and was speaker of the House of Assembly during the session of 1855, and served on many important committees during the time he was in that body. He was Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, and a master in the Court of Chancery. He held many honorable positions in the State,—as international judge from New Jersey in the department of pomology at the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia; a member of the New Jersey State Board of Agriculture; one of the managers of the New Jersey State Geological Survey; president of the West Jersey Surveyor's Association; president of the State Board of Visitors to Rutgers Scientific College for the benefit of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts; vice-president of the American Pomological Society; a member of the Horticultural Societies of New Jersey and Pennsylvania; an honorary member of the Pennsylvania Historical Society; president of the Westfield and Camden Turnpike Company. He was a Republican in politics, and was chosen president of the first Republican convention which assembled in the State, and was foremost in all political and economic questions of the day. He saw the advantages to be derived from railroads in the State, and used his influence in every way to enact laws giving the State the right to construct railroads, and abolishing the exclusive monopoly privileges of the joint companies. From that time all legal restraints against building railroads in New Jersey have been removed, and in 1873 a general railroad law was passed, and the people left at liberty to build railroads wherever the public good required. He was widely known, identified with the interests of the State as one of the foremost and most arduous co-laborers in all that pertained to the welfare of the public good and enhancement of the State; and in his associations with men was highly esteemed for his excellent judgment and executive ability. He was unostentatious in his intercourse with men, yet dignified in bearing, and had the esteem and confidence of all who knew him, and his natural attractiveness won the respect and regard of strangers.

Martha Hilyard, the wife of ^oJarrett Stokes,, was the dau. of William Hilyard and Hannah Rowland, the dau. of Benjamin Rowland and Mary George, of Abington, Pennsylvania. William was the son of Jacob Hilyard and Martha Robinson. Jacob was the son of Edward Hilyard and Sarah Haines, the dau. of Richard Haines and Mary Carlile, who was of pure Indian lineage. Richard was the son of Richard Haines and Margaret, the progenitors of the Haines family, who came from the Parish of Aynhoe, Northamptonshire, England, in 1682. (See page 298 for further ancestry.)

HOMESTEAD OF WILLIAM STOKES.
Dods, Warren County, Ohio. Erected by him in 1824. Where he resided until his death, 8mo. 17th., 1838.

Grandfather William Stokes' homestead, erected by him in 1824, and where he always lived thereafter. It passed from the family about 1877, but has not lost its historical veneration by the family. It is possible that it will again fall into the hands of some of the family. It has fallen in decay and out of repair—notice the inscription on the north end of the house. I am not informed what the "H" is for.

⁵William Stokes deceased 8-17, 1838.

Hannah, his wife, deceased 4- , 1858.

William Stokes, the fourth child of Jarvis Stokes and Elizabeth Rogers, was born in Burlington county, New Jersey, 1-14, 1779. He married, 4-8, 1798, Hannah Hatcher, of the same county, who was born 8-11, 1775, and settled and resided in Burlington county until 5 mo., 1817. He was a wheelwright by trade, and engaged in the manufacture of wagons. Up to this last date there had been born to this union ten children, nine of them living—John E. alone having departed this life—the eldest, Rebecca, being eighteen years old, and the youngest, Elizabeth Ann, one year old. With these nine children, and his wife, William Stokes left New Jersey in a train composed of two ordinary road lumber wagons loaded with mover's outfit, and after a journey of near two months arrived in Lebanon, Warren county, Ohio, 7-4th following.

The trip across the country, over the mountains and through the valleys, was without particular incident or mishap, and the entire family reached their destination in usual health and spirits.

The region of country over which they traveled presented new scenes daily. Over the rolling surface was the varied arrangement of woodland and field, with log farm houses and barns attesting separate possessions.

There were frequent brooks and wide rivers, narrow, winding country roads, not roads lined with fences, but along which the birches, the elderberries and the sumach grew, with wild grapevines and clamatis climbing to the top of the majestic and sturdy oaks that seemed to stand guard for the safety of the travelers.

The journey was made at a time when nearly the entire trade and travel of the country was by team over dirt roads, and through a country where bridges spanned only a few of the rivers, with long and steep hills and high mountains to climb and descend, and often, for days through the solid forests, the sun only to be seen at high noon, with the wagons for sleeping apartments, and the roadside for a kitchen; where men, and even women and children, walked for days that the wagons might be lightened over the rocks and in the mire. We can form some idea of the force and character of this courageous couple, as they contemplated and completed such an arduous journey, leaving behind them the sacred ties of home, fond parents, brothers and sisters; but it illustrates the character of William Stokes and his faithful consort. Soon after arriving in Warren county, William Stokes settled on a farm one and one-half miles south of Lebanon, and soon after purchased a farm of 160 acres in Clear Creek township, near Utica, in Warren county, for which he gave seventeen dollars per acre, upon which was a double log house, a log stable, and thirty-five acres of land cleared for cultivation, to which he moved in the spring of 1818, and where he passed the remainder of his happy life. William Stokes was strong physically and mentally; full of life and energy, and whatever he undertook he accomplished, if it was possible of accomplishment.

He was fond of company, made himself agreeable to others, and was honored and respected by all. He took much interest in the education of his children, and had them apply themselves assiduously to their books, and provided them with works tending to broaden and strengthen their minds. He was of a jovial nature and happy turn of mind, and readily adapted himself to events and surroundings—a man of honest purpose and high character—a man among men; he transmitted to his children these same characteristics, and after his death, his memory is resplendent with those jewels that “man doth leave after him.”

He died after a short illness, 8 mo. 17th, 1838.

The good woman who had been his constant companion and helpmate through life, was, like him, strong in mind and body. She possessed many rare qualities, and inspired her children with ambition. She ever kept a watchful eye over them, and maintained their united confidence to the last. She was a woman of unusual energy and determination, and these qualities were slackened only by the weakness of age.

In religion she and her husband cast their lot with the Society of Friends, or Quakers, and to the end maintained their belief that “there is a spirit in man, and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding.”

After the death of her husband she continued to reside on the farm where the family had lived since coming to Ohio, and at the ripe age of four score and three, she died on the 18th day of 4 mo., 1858, having lived twenty years after her husband's death. They had born to them twelve children, seven sons and five daughters, all of whom grew to manhood and womanhood except John E.

GEORGE HAINES, M. D.

George Haines, M. D., son of Nehemiah Haines and Abigail Haines, was born 6-13, 1798, two miles north of Medford, on the old homestead located in 1863 by John Haines, the eldest son of Richard and Margaret, the progenitors of the family, in the house built by John's son Jonathan, which is still occupied by the Haines family, and in good repair. He remained with his parents until the death of his father, and later went to Camden, N. J., in the store of his uncle, Noah, and brother, Charles Haines. At the age of eighteen he entered the office of Dr. Parish, of Philadelphia, and began the study of medicine, and graduated in 1821 from the University of Pennsylvania. After two years spent in the hospitals of Philadelphia, and attending Dr. Parish's private practice, he removed to Medford, and began the practice of his profession. He married 2-17, 1825, Sarah Wills, and erected a dwelling in Medford, where he continued to reside until 1845, when his business was so extensive as to affect his health. He sold his dwelling and a great part of his business to Dr. A. E. Budd, bought a farm one mile from Medford, where he moved and continued to reside until 1856, when he removed to Medford, and still continued to visit some families who would not dispense with his medical services.

He was a member of the New Jersey Medical Society, and kept abreast of his profession. He was frequently called in consultation, as his experience and judgment had won distinction for him as a physician. He was one of the organizers of Medford Bank, elected director, and one of the inspectors until his resignation. He was treasurer of the Burlington County Insurance Company until his resignation, and did a great deal of public business, such as settling estates, &c. He was a man of broad, liberal views, and his word was his bond. He had fine poetic taste, was a fluent speaker, and delivered many discourses in the cause of temperance. He was a member of the Society of Friends. In politics he was a Republican, but would not accept of office, although frequently solicited.

He was a firm supporter of Lincoln in the dark and bloody days of the Rebellion, and contributed liberally in raising means toward enlisting men in the army. He was of a vigorous constitution, and rarely unwell; his last sickness was not two hours, which terminated in death 4-12, 1877, nearly seventy-nine years of age.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT.

JOSHUA B. LIPPINCOTT.

Joshua B. Lippincott, the only child of Jacob and Sarah Lippincott, was born in Burlington county, New Jersey, 3-18, 1813. His parents were of English extraction, and members of the Society of Friends. He traces his ancestry, on his father's side, to Richard and Abigail Lippincott, who removed from the parish of Stonehouse, in Devonshire, England, and settled in New Jersey in 1669.

His mother was the daughter of Joshua Ballinger and Rebecca Moore, to whose care he was early left by the death of his father, and from whom he undoubtedly derived the many characteristics which contributed to his phenomenal success in life. While a boy he was placed with a bookseller in Philadelphia, and at the age of eighteen years, on the failure of his employer, he assumed, at the request of the creditors, the entire charge of the concern. He commenced business in 1836, with some pecuniary assistance from his mother, at Fourth and Race streets, Philadelphia, under the name of J. B. Lippincott & Co., and here continued until 1850. In the meantime, exceptional business prosperity sufficed for him to amass a considerable fortune, and in 1849 he purchased the extensive business of Grigg, Elliot & Co., and a new concern, the result of this purchase, was organized in 1850, under the firm name of Lippincott, Grambo & Co., the concern subsequently locating at Fourth and Commerce streets. Availing himself of the facilities for extending his business which his absorption of the Grigg & Elliot concern afforded, J. B. Lippincott in 1851, made his first business trip to Europe, and while there, by surprisingly extensive purchase of books—extensive for those days—he established a credit for large dealings, which laid the foundation of his subsequent importing business.

On the retirement of Grambo, in 1855, the firm resumed its original name of J. B. Lippincott & Co., and for the following thirty years enjoyed a course of prosperity almost without a parallel in the book business of this country. In 1855 appeared the first edition of "Lippincott Pronouncing Gazetteer of the World," a ponderous volume of over two thousand pages, which through successive editions has since been virtually without a rival. Meanwhile some share of the Government business had been entrusted to the house of J. B. Lippincott & Co.

The transactions with foreign publishing houses also became of increasing importance in the business of the house, resulting in large importations, both of printed books and of stereotype plates, among which was Chambers' Encyclopædia. "Lippincott's Pronouncing Dictionary of Biography and Mythology," a single volume of over two thousand pages, has had no successful competitor in its peculiar field. Other valuable standard works were added to the list of publications, which, in a sketch of this character, are too numerous to mention.

In 1868 was commenced the issue of Lippincott's Magazine, which won a high literary reputation. Several other periodicals were also issued.

In 1861-63 he erected the marble-fronted store of the J. B. Lippincott Company, a pioneer of the numerous stately business edifices on Market street. In 1868 he erected his commodious family residence at 204 West Rittenhouse Square. Other extensive real estate investments were made by J. B. Lippincott from time to time as his increasing wealth outgrew the demands of his business.

He was endowed with an active and comprehensive mind, keen perception, and untiring energy.

In 1845 he was united in marriage with Josephine Craige, an accomplished lady, and a worthy sharer of her husband's prosperity. Their children—three sons, Craige, Walter and J. Bertram, and daughter Josephine S.—all lived to inherit the fruits of their father's ability and enterprise, the sons coming by will into possession of the great publishing business to which their father had given so many years of earnest and efficient labor.

In 1875, while traveling about for recreation—extending his trip up the Nile and through Syria—he had the misfortune to contract a fever which undermined his vigorous constitution, from the effects of which he never fully recovered.

In 1878 he visited Europe for the fifth and last time, his journey extending into Spain and Portugal.

On 1-5, 1886, the Philadelphia evening newspapers announced the death of J. B. Lippincott, the well-known publisher and bookseller, thus closing his career.

RICHARD S. BRADDOCK, M. D.

Richard S. Braddock, M. D., the son of William Braddock, Jr., and Mary Jane (Garwood) Braddock, was born in Medford, N. J., 12-3, 1853.

His preparatory education was obtained at the Pennington Seminary, from which he graduated in 1872. He read medicine with N. Newlin Stokes, M. D., of Moorestown, N. J., attended lectures and was graduated from the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, in 1875.

The same year he commenced the practice of his profession in Medford and vicinity, where by his skillful treatment of disease, and ready diagnosis of cases, he has gained the confidence of a large circle of friends, and has here continued a successful practice since.

He takes special interest in surgery, and won for himself a very creditable distinction in the art; is a student of his profession, and well read in the best medical literature of the day.

He married, in 1887, Emma T. Antrim (see page 206), to whom one child, R. Chilton Braddock, was born, who died when quite young.

Emma, his wife, dying a few years after the son, he married again the second time, Eva S. Ballinger (see page 207).

His father, the second son of William Braddock, Sr., and Ann (Rogers) Braddock, spent his entire life in Medford township, as a farmer, lumber merchant, butcher, and dealing extensively in real estate, pine land and cranberry bottoms.

He married Mary J. Garwood, who bore him eight children, Marianna, Hannah G., Charles S. (all of whom are deceased), Emma Jane, the wife (now widow) of Samuel Stackhouse, Adelaide, Clara (both unmarried), Richard S., M. D., and Lilian, who is deceased. See page 206.

CHARLES WILLIAMS.

Hannah Stokes, the second child of Charles and Tacy Jarrett Stokes, married Charles Williams by Friends' ceremony, on the 27th day of the 4th mo., A. D. 1837, and left New Jersey to reside as a happy bride in one of the first homes of prominence in Montgomery county, in the State of Pennsylvania, beautifully situated among the picturesque hills of White Marsh township, bordering on the Wissahickon creek, and fronting on the turnpike leading from Chestnut Hill to Norristown.

Charles Williams was a man of strong individuality; there was a physical force and magnetism about him in appearance, voice and manner which few men possess. In stature he was erect and of magnificent proportions. In personal bearing he was superb. In character he was sterling. In disposition he had the courage of a lion, and the kindness and amiability of a woman. He loved the truth, and always sought after it; and when contending for it, there was no arm more strong than his. He was widely known as a man of influence and property. He was a farmer by occupation, choice and enjoyment. His White Marsh farm of near three hundred highly improved acres was an ideal one, and no home in Montgomery county was more distinguished for hospitality than his. He was a man of great mental and physical energy. He was very positive, without faith in compromises. He took interest in all matters of a public character, and was strong and conscientious in his convictions. In politics he was an anti-slavery man, and a prominent Lincoln Republican. He was a member of the Religious Society of Friends, and was obedient to its precepts and principles. He was kind and good to those who were worthy, and was all the time doing noble deeds which his wealth would admit, known only to himself and the beneficiary. He was very unassuming, and deplored notoriety and self-praise; yet appreciative of merit and noble character, and such always found in him a friend and support.

His relationship with the Stokes family in marrying Hannah brought with it additional honor, social distinction and family pride.

Hannah, who survives him, was to him all that the wife comprehends; she was attractive, an ideal mother, a helpmate and great woman.

He loved and adored her; and their characters, their happy union and career together through a long wedlock will always stand out as a beacon-light to guide and instruct their large family of interesting children, grandchildren, and great grandchildren to the remotest generations.

JARRET STOKES.

Jarret Stokes, late of Rancocas, in the county of Burlington and State of New Jersey, the third child of Charles and Tacy (Jarrett) Stokes, was one of the most able and well known men throughout the State. In appearance, the accompanying portrait is an excellent likeness. In disposition, those who can recall him will remember his always pleasant and bright face, his eagle eye, his cordial greeting and charming demeanor. In character, he was born to live in the affections of all his friends, and even those who had only a casual acquaintance with him. He was pleasant, unselfish, generous, helpful, fearless, honest, enterprising and successful.

In attainments, he was pre-eminent in his day and generation, reaching the zenith of his glory in the sixties, and departing this life on the 18th day of the 9th mo., A. D. 1870, in the 48th year of his age, comparatively a young man. He was a scholar with but few superiors. He was regarded by all as a talented man, qualified and ready for most mental work. Mathematics and logic were his fort. He was a surveyor and civil engineer by profession, with an extensive practice in the southern counties of the State. He was active, enterprising and aggressive; always first in all kinds of public improvements in the vicinity of Rancocas, in clearing, draining and converting to farm use the great swamps and rich agricultural lands about him. His advanced and scientific ideas inspired and directed the efforts of others, which enabled him before his death to see Rancocas and vicinity in the advance of most other rural districts in the county, in roads, houses, buildings and general home improvements. His ability was sought along most practical lines, and his services were always rendered in a masterly manner.

He was among the pioneers in the improvement of the public highways, in grading and construction of them into turnpikes; his theory was, turnpikes were essential at that time for further development, civilization and refinement throughout the arteries of society. He was a supporter of Barclay Haines, of early railroad fame, as a promoter in the building of new railroads, especially the road from Camden to Mount Holly; and in maintaining steamboat facilities on the Rancocas river between Philadelphia and Hainesport. In politics there were but few better known men throughout the State than he. He served his party in the legislature, and in the State Central Committee. He was a fluent and logical speaker, and in argument with him few successfully coped. He loved argument without indulging in abuse or resentment. He was thorough in the knowledge necessary to be known to be familiar with the Federal Government under the Federal Constitution throughout its different departments. He was neither displeased or disrespectful with his opponents. He recognized the wisdom and propriety of more than one political party, and without regard for his personal fortunes. He was honest in his convictions that the Democratic party, faithful to the trust and duty that the name implies, would, as the administering arm in power, more largely promote the general welfare of the whole people, and secure to posterity the greater blessings of liberty than any other party. In religion, he was a member of the Religious Society of Friends. He was a firm believer in the broad and comprehensive testimonies as embraced and expounded by the founders of that religious sect.

He served his local and preparative meeting as clerk, and was always willing to contribute the major part of the expense in having and maintaining a meeting house and school house property attractive and complete after the plain ideas of Friends. During his active period, the Friends' school at Rancocas was one of the most popular and best patronized in the county of Burlington. Socially, as long as he lived, his position as an ideal host was fixed and acknowledged. No planters' house south of Mason and Dixon's line, before the Civil War, was more distinguished for it unbounded hospitality than his. The gates of his large and well kept grounds, and the doors of his beautiful and spacious mansion, were always ajar for all alike—the white and the black, the rich and the poor; the Democrat or the Republican. They all frequented it to enjoy the society of their beloved friend "Jarrett."

As a son, he was dutiful and affectionate. As a husband, he was loving and devoted; and as a father, he was more than indulgent in considering the welfare of his three sons—Hilyard, Charles and Rowland—and in giving them a happy boyhood.

JARVIS STOKES.

JARVIS STOKES.

Jarvis Stokes, first son and second child of William Stokes, was born 1-6, 1801, in New Jersey, and became a resident of Ohio, with his father's family, in 1817, with whom he lived until his marriage, when he moved and settled on the farm now occupied by Frank Stokes, near Lytle.

Soon after he purchased the farm known as the Dr. Stokes farm, to which he moved and continued to occupy until his death. Jarvis Stokes was a large man, probably weighing two hundred and twenty-five pounds, and of rugged constitution. He was full of life and energy, free, open and generous hearted.

Commencing life with empty but willing hands, he was soon engaged in business for himself, and turned the nimble sixpence into action, accumulating sufficient in a short time to pay for the farm.

In the prime of manhood, his energy and determination to succeed in life were now put to the test, and by indomitable will and the application of thorough business principles, he accumulated a fortune, estimated at a sixth of a million of dollars, and while in this day of multi-millionaires this sum does not seem large, yet in that day it was a vast sum.

Jarvis Stokes loved action and energy. He loved noise, and in noise there was music to him. Not a sound could be made producing something of value that was not harmonious to his ear. With him results were everything, and the performing of the greatest amount in the easiest way, in the shortest time, ever met with his enthusiastic approval.

In connection with his other affairs, he was engaged in the banking business in Waynesville, being associated with the late Israel Harris. He was kind-hearted, and did much for the poor of his neighborhood. It was said of him, that his table was always spread, and no one ever left his residence without being served or having the opportunity of declining his hospitality. He was just and generous, and gave with a free hand; his liberality was as extensive as his acquaintance. He continued to reside where he had spent so many happy days, and died 5-3, 1868, in the full esteem of all who knew him, upon whose lips were spoken "a good man is gone."

JOEL A. STOKES.

Joel A. Stokes was born in Burlington county, New Jersey, 12-16, 1802, and came to Ohio with his father when fifteen years old. He received such an education as was afforded by the country district school at the time, and he grew to manhood while the country was yet new and in process of settlement.

He endured the hardships of an early settler, and in endeavoring to do his part in preparing the country for habitation, he seared his face and blackened his clothing at many a log-rolling. In his day he was recognized as a man of much worth and sterling character. He was robust in health, and transmitted to his children vigorous constitutions, and had it not been for an unfortunate accident that caused his death at the early age of fifty, in all probability he would have lived and rounded out a ripe old age. He married Mary Hathaway, and they had four children, three of whom are still living.

He was active and vigorous, cool and not easily excited, and was possessed of a calm and deliberate judgment.

For nine years he was a Justice of the Peace of Clear Creek township, filling the office to the satisfaction of all, and was in office at the time of his death.

He possessed the confidence of his neighbors in a marked degree, and was freely consulted in matters affecting their interests. He settled at the old homestead after his marriage, and continued to reside there until his death, in 1852.

FRANKLIN STOKES.

Franklin Stokes was born in New Jersey 3-10, 1806. He received a common district school education, such as was afforded at the old log school house east of Utica. Not content with this, he employed his time well in gaining additional knowledge, and in his early life showed an inclination to become a practical printer and editor of a political newspaper. Accordingly, while a young man, he obtained employment in the composing room and mechanical department of the Cincinnati Gazette, and continued there until he had thoroughly mastered that part of producing a newspaper. At the same time his mind was active in the pursuit of knowledge. He, in connection with Thomas Ross, started and published at Lebanon a weekly publication called the Ohio Argus, it being the first paper published in Warren county that gave support to Democratic principles and Democratic candidates.

The paper was ably edited and very successful and influential, and moulded public sentiment by its fair presentations of public questions, and during this time the county uniformly gave a Democratic majority.

This field of labor, however, was not large enough for the active brain of Franklin Stokes, and seeking a larger place, possessing greater opportunities for advancement, he parted with his interest in the Argus, and removed to Hamilton, Butler county, Ohio, and began the publication of the Hamilton Telegraph, he being its editor and active manager. The paper became a power for good, obtained a large circulation, and to the Telegraph and the pen of Franklin Stokes is attributed the Democratic majority that Butler county produces, for in the minds of the voters he planted the fundamental principles of Democracy. He continued the publication for a number of years, but health failing, he disposed of it.

He was elected Treasurer of Butler county, and was elected Auditor of the county. He took an active part in politics, and enjoyed the excitement. He attended and participated in the conventions of his party, was an able writer, modest in his bearing, and in his later years occupied a prominent position before the public as a man of rare judgment and learning.

During his life he made many warm friends, many of whom live to-day and speak in flattering terms of him. He was associated with the leading men of his day, and possessed their respect in an eminent degree.

Franklin Stokes remained single, and died 4-2, 1857, in his fifty-second year; and while he left no descendants to be with us to-day, we, his relatives, honor and respect his life and character and the results of his labors.

GRANVILLE W. STOKES.

GRANVILLE W. STOKES.

Granville W. Stokes was born in Burlington county, New Jersey, 9-26, 1810, and came by wagon to Ohio at the age of seven, with the family of his father. He attended the district school during the winter months, working on the farm at other times for his father until he was twenty-one years old, when he entered college at South Hanover, Indiana. A manual training department was connected with the school, and while in attendance he learned the carpenter and cooper trades. He then read law under Thomas Corwin at Lebanon. He was engaged at his trade a few years in the South, also as a railroad employee, and taught school in Jefferson county, Mississippi. He afterwards attended the Cincinnati Law School, from which he graduated and was admitted to the bar in the 4th mo., 1839, and practiced his profession successfully for a number of years at Lebanon, and for a time was associated with Governor Waller, practicing at Hamilton, Ohio. For five years he was Clerk of Common Pleas Court in Warren county, Ohio. At the expiration of his term as clerk, he removed to the country and engaged in general agriculture, which he continued until a few years before his death, he having purchased the old homestead where his father settled on coming from New Jersey, which he improved and beautified, and on which he lived to enjoy for a number of years the fruits of his labors and beauty of the scenery and surroundings that were mainly the work of his own hands.

At the age of twenty-nine he married Jane Robinson, and to them eight children were born.

At the Presidential election in 1852, he was a member of the electoral college, when Franklin Pierce was the candidate of his party for the Presidency. He represented the Butler-Warren Senatorial District for the term beginning in 1853, in the Senate of Ohio. He was made a Brigadier General in the Ohio militia previous to the Rebellion, but was prevented from active field service in that war by an accident that nearly cost him his life, by having a limb almost severed by a reaping machine.

During his eventful life he had collected many specimens of different kinds, which he highly prized, and took great pleasure in reciting their history and exhibiting them—among which was a musket that Mrs. Stokes' grandfather had carried through the Revolutionary War; also a brick that was taken from the first house built by William Penn in Philadelphia, being made in London; and a six-pound cannon ball, presented to him by General De La Mar, aide-de-camp to General Jackson at the battle of New Orleans.

Granville W. Stokes was a man of broad mind and superior ability, a man of general information upon all questions; he could quote the Bible at will, repeat his party's platforms from the time the first one was made the fundamental principle of his party by Thomas Jefferson, to the day of his death. He was possessed of a very retentive memory, recalling incidents and language with the utmost ease. He was a thorough student, deep thinker, and absolutely original in his expressions, and gave them such force that they carried with them admiration and conviction. He was a master of his pen and the English language, a fluent speaker, and as an orator had few equals. He was frequently on the stump for his party during the campaigns, and delivered many stirring addresses. He was attractive in form, feature and address, and drew the attention of those he mingled with. He was magnetic, broad, liberal, tender-hearted. He was the pride of his parents, his brothers and sisters, his family and acquaintances, universally admired and loved. Between him and his family there was a chord that could not be broken. He loved his children, and this in return was reciprocated by them. He lived a great man, and as such he died, 5 mo., 19th, 1882, in his seventy-second year.

BENJAMIN A. STOKES.

Benjamin A. Stokes was a native of Burlington county, New Jersey, born 9th mo., 3, 1812, and was the last of the seven sons of William Stokes to depart this life. He became an inhabitant of Ohio when four years old, in 1817, by the removal of his father to this State at that time. Until his majority he gave his services to his parents upon the farm, and during the winter months he attended the district pioneer school. For a number of years he taught school in different States of the Union, mostly in Mississippi. At the age of twenty-six he became a trader on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, buying wheat, corn, flour and pork in Cincinnati and vicinity and shipping them by flat boat, and selling and trading them as the boat moved with the current on its way to New Orleans, at the towns where the stops were made, finally selling and exchanging the residue of his cargo for cotton, sugar and molasses in New Orleans, which he brought North and sold and traded at the towns on the return trip, usually disposing of the remainder of his stock in Cincinnati. In 1839 he began a mercantile life, purchased a stock of general merchandise of William D. Mulford, located in Utica, and continued in the mercantile business until 1853. During this time, however, he packed pork and shipped it to Cincinnati and was engaged in trade in general in whatever, in his judgment, formed a legitimate business and out of which a legitimate profit could be reasonably expected.

His business was successful from the start, and up to the time that he disposed of his stock he had accumulated sufficient means to purchase from Nathan Graham the farm to which he moved in 1853, building a house and making improvements, and where he continued to reside for forty-six years until his death.

He was one of the organizers of the National Bank at Waynesville, and at the first meeting of the stockholders for organization he was elected a director and was chosen vice president, which position he held until his death. He conducted a bank for a time in Lebanon, under the name of B. A. Stokes & Co., finally selling the same to the Lebanon National Bank, and at the time of the organization of the latter, in which he became a large stockholder, he was elected a director and chosen vice president, which positions he also held until his demise. He was a member of the Board of Directors of the Orphans' Home for a number of years, until he voluntarily resigned. He was a Justice of the Peace of his township for eleven years, refusing a further re-election. Although he had never sought office, he had frequently been the candidate of his party, against his wish, for various positions, and came near being elected Treasurer of Warren county on the Democratic ticket in the early sixties, although the county was strongly Republican. He was recognized as a man of rare business attainments, and possessed the confidence of his acquaintances, and was frequently consulted in important business matters. He was conservative, yet aggressive, a man of rare judgment in business matters, and at one time was one of the largest landholders in the county. He was keen and shrewd, and was always able to take care of himself and guide his financial ship safely through threatened disaster. He was broad in his views, a man of much general information, and a great reader. He was thoroughly posted on the events of the day, and investigated all subjects that interested him. He was an independent thinker, and adopted no one's ideas that did not conform to his judgment. He was original in expression, and ready to defend in argument what he believed. He was free from deception, open hearted and as true as steel. He was honest, economical, industrious, thrifty and full of energy, and he liked these qualities in others. He was the foremost citizen of his neighborhood, possessing the confidence and admiration of all. He admired nature in all its manifold and multiplying forms. To him it was always beautiful. The bird that chirped upon his door-step and the fowl that ate from his own hand were dear to him, and he loved them. He clung tenaciously to life and beat back the wave of disease and the infirmities of old age with a wonderful vitality, his vigorous constitution finally yielding to the inevitable, and even in his last sickness, and but a few short hours before his death, he said: "I won't give up; I won't surrender the fort yet." He loved his home and surroundings, and the door was always open to all comers of whatever station in life, humble or otherwise; his hospitality was a part of his nature, and no one ever left his hearth feeling that they had not been welcomed.

He married Maria L. Mulford, 3-31, 1841, and was the father of ten children, all of whom reached their majority, and eight of them survive him. He gave them all a good common school education, inspired them with ambition, and retained their confidence and fatherly love until the last. He loved his family and was always happiest when surrounded by them in an unbroken circle of the living. Having lived a just and generous life, he passed away, retaining the esteem of every one, dying on the 14th day of the 8th mo., 1899, nearly eighty-seven years old.

WILLIAM H. STOKES, M. D.

William H. Stokes was born in Warren county, Ohio. His father died when he was eighteen years old, and he was thrown early in life upon his own resources.

The small patrimony that was left to him by his father was largely used in his education. He attended Miami University at Oxford, Ohio, and applied himself industriously to his books at odd times, and at the age of twenty-one was recommended by Governors Corwin and Morrow, receiving an appointment to West Point as a cadet, and entered that military school soon after, and remained a student there until 4-18, 1844, leaving the school, however, before graduating.

Soon after his return from West Point he began the study of medicine, and graduated at the Ohio Medical College, in Cincinnati, in 1848, and immediately began the practice of medicine in partnership with Dr. M. H. Keever, residing and having his office in Ridgeville, and continued the practice of his chosen profession until 1861, when he settled on a farm northeast of Utica, where he resided until the spring of 1869, at which time he removed to the Jarvis Stokes farm, near Lytle, which he had in the meantime purchased, and where he continued to reside until his death. Dr. Stokes was a man of energy, refinement and good taste, and at once began extensive improvements upon his farm until it was looked upon and recognized from all points of view as the model farm of the county. Dr. Stokes was elected from the Butler-Warren District, and served his constituents well and favorably two terms in the Ohio Senate, voluntarily retiring at the end of his second term. He took much interest in politics and was thoroughly posted upon all public questions. He was an industrious student and burned much midnight oil reading standard works.

He was an admirer of good, substantial stock and fowls, and had the choicest of these upon his farm. He loved the animal creation and made great pets of them, and in their use they were his companions rather than his beasts. He loved nature in all its beauty, from the sturdy oak to the daisy that grew beneath its protecting limbs. He loved the birds and their music, and gave them a welcome habitation as near his own as their nature allowed them to venture; he loved flowers in all their radiant beauty and fragrance, and the bees that sipped the nectar from their folds. Nature was full of perfume to him, and his every sense reached out to embrace it. He loved music, and its melody soothed and gave him rest, and under its strains he could find repose in sleep.

He married Susanna Throckmorton, 1-31, 1849, that union being blessed with twelve children, seven of whom, with his aged consort, are still living.

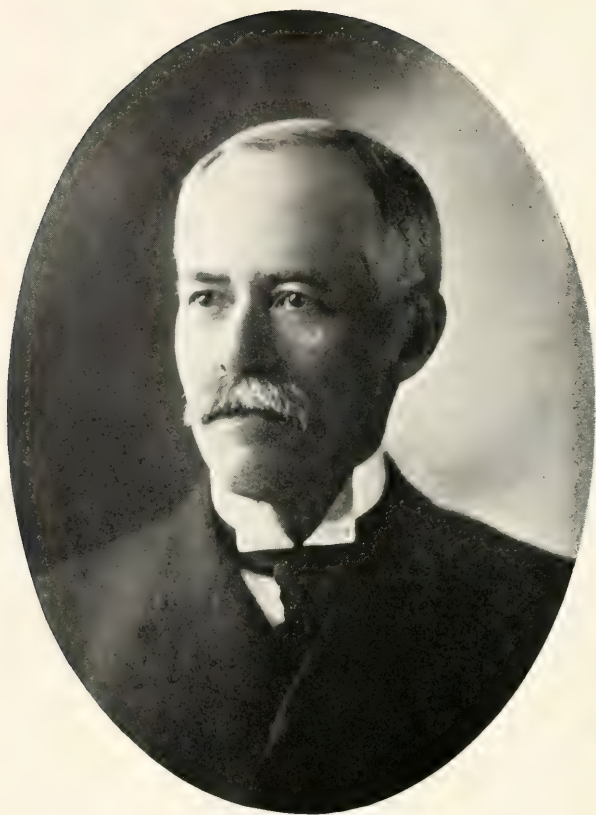

Dr. Stokes was a man of character and his word was the height of honor. His friends were as numerous as his acquaintances. He lived quietly and in peace with his neighbors. He was active, full of energy, and loved his family and did much for his children, dying in his seventy-sixth year, universally honored and respected.

WILLIAM J. WORTH STOKES.

William J. Worth Stokes, the fifth child of Benjamin A. Stokes and Maria L. Mulford Stokes, of Utica, Ohio, was born 12-8, 1849. He removed with his parents to what is now known as the Stokes Homestead, near Ridgeville, in 1853. He attended the district school and the National Normal School at Lebanon, Ohio. After concluding his studies in 12 mo., 1871, he located at Lincoln, Illinois, and engaged in mercantile business. He being of a studious and professional disposition, while attending to his business at the same time read law with Hoblit & Foley, active practitioners, and was admitted to the bar by the Supreme Court in Illinois in 1st mo., 1876. He at once began the practice of law, won prominence and distinction, and was elected corporation counsel of the city, which position he filled with credit to himself and to the true interest of the commonwealth. Ability and good fortune attending him from his first efforts in the law, his ambition caused him to seek wider fields for his practice. He removed to Chicago in the 10th mo., 1888, and there won additional laurels for his reputation, until 10th mo., 1893, when his health succumbed to overstudy and overwork, from which indisposed physical state he did not recover for a number of years.

He removed from Chicago, Ill., to Dayton, Ohio, in 1893, where he continues to live, has regained his health, is well known, honored and respected as a superior business man, a capable public man and valued citizen. His services have been invited by all classes. Positions of trust and responsibility seeking the proper incumbent have and continue to seek him. In character he much resembles his Jersey cousins. He is honest, generous, genial and hospitable. As a student along practical, political and religious lines, he is superior always, going deep to the underlying basic principles, which enables him to be both intelligent and charitable.

In religious sentiment, he is a Quaker; in politics, he is a conscientious Democrat, and has been solicited by his party to represent it in the Senate of Ohio, and as city counsel of Dayton.

On 5-1, 1879, he married A. Alice White, of Columbus, Ohio. This union has been congenial and happy, but has not been blessed with offspring.

They enjoy a wide circle of acquaintances, and are prominent and popular in social affairs.

EDWARD CASPER STOKES.

Edward C. Stokes, son of Edwin H. and Matilda (Kemble) Stokes, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 12-22, 1860. He was educated in the public schools in Millville and at Brown University, Providence, R. I. He was elected City Superintendent of Public Schools in Millville in 1889, a position he held until 1898. He served as a member of Assembly from the second district of Cumberland county in 1891 and 1892. In the latter year, when he was only two years over the required age, he was elected Senator from Cumberland county; he was re-elected in 1895, and again in 1898, thus receiving a third term of office, an honor never before conferred on a Senator from that county. In 1895 he served as President of the Senate, and discharged the duties of that office with rare tact, ability and impartiality. During his eleven years' service as a legislator he made a brilliant record. He took a leading part in all matters of importance, and as a debater he displayed much talent and ability. He was very active in bringing about the nomination of Foster M. Voorhees for Governor, and in the campaign which followed rendered effective service for the election of his friend and associate. In 1900 he was chosen Vice Chairman of the Republican State Committee, and in the campaign of the year following he took a prominent part in furthering the election of Franklin Murphy as Governor of New Jersey. In 1902 he came within four votes of the nomination for United States Senator to succeed the late General Sewell in a joint caucus held by the Republican Senators and Assemblymen on 1-23, 1902. Very few men who have entered upon legislative service in New Jersey have met with as much success as he. In the brief period of ten years, by sheer force of character, he carved his way to the front rank of leadership in his party. He was nominated for the office of Clerk in Chancery by Governor Voorhees on 3-22, 1901, and the nomination was at once confirmed by a unanimous vote of the Senate. His term of office is for five years, which will not expire until 3-30, 1906, and his salary is $6,000 a year.

He is president of the Mechanics' National Bank of Trenton, from which he receives a large salary.

*Samuel Stokes, the twelfth child of 'Jarvis Stokes and Elizabeth Rogers, page 101, was born in Rancocas, Burlington County, New Jersey, August the 13th, 1794.

In his early boyhood he was apprenticed to his brother-in-law, Abel Haines, where he acquired his trade of a thorough blacksmith. This was his occupation up to the last five years of his life.

In 1814 he married Amy Middleton and began house-keeping in Burlington, New Jersey, and where their three children were born. James Middleton Stokes, born August the 8th, 1815; Elizabeth Ann, born January the 19th, 1817; Sarah W., born October the 31st, 1819. In 1823 he brought his family to Ohio and began work at his trade in Lebanon, Warren County. An incident occurred while there in connection with the famous Thomas Corwin that is of interest. "Uncle Sam's" mail was carried through Lebanon on Sunday, and the carrier's horse having cast a shoe he applied at the house to have Samuel Stokes to shoe his horse, the animal having become so lame he could not proceed. While fitting the shoe Elder Lowrie, going by the shop on his way to church, stopped and told him that he was desecrating the Sabbath day, and that he would have him (Stokes) arrested. Without fear of the result, he completed his task. But on the following morning a constable came with a warrant for his arrest.

Mr. Corwin was immediately consulted, and he told Mr. Stokes to return to his work, leaving the case in his charge. The result was that the case was never called. After living in Lebanon two years he removed to Trenton, Butler County.

In 1825 he was elected a lieutenant in the Social Rifle Company, then organized in that village. After remaining in Trenton four years he removed to Jacksonborough, where he resided the remainder of his life. The elder daughter, Elizabeth, married John Sherwood. To this union one daughter was given, who lived to the age of sixteen years, the mother having died November 27, 1843. The second daughter, Sarah W., died at the age of twenty-four years, unmarried. Mr. Stokes held the office of Township Treasurer for two years. He was a self-made man, for, although he received some assistance from his father, he was so unfortunate as to lose it all before coming West. He was raised a Quaker, but married out of the church, and never applied for admission.

Being genial, he had many friends. Of a strong, sturdy habit, he was a man possessing unusual strength of body. While working on the farm, during the last five years of his life, it was his daily custom to walk two miles distant back and forth to the farm.

After a brief illness he died October 11, 1860. His widow, Amy, then made her home with her son, surviving her husband fourteen years—dying October 13, 1874.

JAMES MIDDLETON STOKES.

James Middleton Stokes, eldest child of Samuel Stokes and Amy (Middleton) Stokes, was born in Burlington, New Jersey, August the 8th, 1815.

He learned the blacksmith trade from his father while living in Jacksonborough, Ohio, and followed that occupation for twenty-two years. He married Maria T. Cox, March the 2nd, 1842, and lived in the above village, where their children were born, until 1855, when he removed to the farm where he still resides. Mr. Stokes has fulfilled the duties of township clerk for thirty-one years, as well as that of other offices. He was real esate appraiser for his township in 1890, being at that time seventy-five years of age. He is still active, and fond of relating his many reminiscences of by-gone times.

To this couple were born three sons. The eldest, William Cox, was born Feb. 23, 1843. He volunteered August 31, 1861, in Co. C., 35th O. V. I., and became third sergeant in his company. He took part in the battles of Perryville and Chickamauga, as well as other engagements. He was killed at the storming of Missionary Ridge, Nov. 25th, 1863. Samuel Gilbert, the second son, was born May 30th, 1847, and has always lived upon the home farm. He married Caroline A. Withrow, Oct. 14th, 1868, and to them were born two children: Jesse Maria, born March 19th, 1870, married John C. Yager, D. D.,

S. Pavola, Kansas, who departed this life Sept. 26th, 1901.

The second child, Arthur Edward, was born Nov. 22d, 1878, married Lillian Kenworthy. At the present time living with his parents.

The third son of James Middleton Stokes and Maria (Cox) Stokes, was James Monroe, born Sept. 30th, 1851, married Elizabeth A. James, Feb. 3rd, 1877.

To them were born three children: William Ernest, March 11th, 1878, A. B., Miami University, 1899. Irene Leta, born May 20th, 1892, and Paul James, born Oct. 15th, 1894.

James Middleton Stokes and Maria T. (Cox) Stokes, celebrated their "golden wedding," March 2d, 1892. The neighbors making this a day for an annual gathering for ten years, up to the sixtieth anniversary, when this loving tie was broken, when Maria T. Stokes passed onward, May 20th, 1902.

CHARLES STOKES.

Charles Stokes, of Beverly, Burlington Co., New Jersey, the second son of Jarrett and Martha (Hilyard) Stokes, is one of the best known and most prominent residents of his county; and his extensive experience in business and professional affairs has brought him in contact with men in every walk of life, and every section of New Jersey; throughout which he is esteemed as a representative citizen.

He was born in one of the historic homesteads of the eminent Colonial Stokes family; his career in life has been in keeping with the spirit and moral of his youthful education. He was fortunate in "his choice of parents," for he reflects the masculine attributes of a father renowned for his ability, for his lofty and practical ideals in both religious and civil affairs.

Endowed with the practical, with much common sense, he is gifted in a high degree with an analytical and synthetic intellect that readily penetrates the fabric of any complicated problem that presents itself for his solution. Understanding the universal laws that govern all progress and evolution, and being well grounded in the fundamental principles that underlie all true science, economics, philosophy and religion, it is not surprising that he is found in the front ranks of those regulators of society, who very often and unconsciously martyr themselves for the truth they know.

Charles Stokes has most harmoniously blended with his altruistic, democratic, and progressive nature, the feminine and moderating essence of his mother's pure spirituality and moral example.

These characteristics combining in one personality and properly blended, make of the possessor one to be respected, admired, and loved.

Socially, he is unassuming in manner, yet dignified, of warm heart and upright sentiments; he is genial, full of the sunshine of life, and always a welcome guest around the festive board.

He is cordial and frank, and has the happy faculty of unconsciously attracting those who become his firm friends and staunch champions.

In politics he is Democratic in the true sense of the word, like his venerable grandfather. He has the unbounded confidence not only of the leading spirits of his own party, but also of all opposing parties, who respect him for his sincerity, and admire him for his earnestness.

While aggressive in his advocacy of the principles of the party with which he is identified, yet he places partisanship beneath the patriotism of the advanced citizen. He is a fluent and forceful speaker, conservative and convincing in argument without being vindictive; a profound thinker, never advocating a measure until fully satisfied of its moral conclusion.

He has frequently been tendered positions of high political preferment, which he invariably declined, preferring to remain the plain citizen, the helpful director in party work which others might aspire to, for its honors and emoluments.

In religion, he is a member of the religious Society of Friends, yet, while adhering to the fundamental teaching of that time-honored, and universally respected people, he is in no sense the orthodox partisan of any particular custom, ceremony, or form of worship; his religious thought is broad enough to embrace the whole human family, and charitable enough to cast the mantle of compassion and love, over the mistakes and shortcomings of others.

In summing up, it may truthfully be said of Charles Stokes, he is one of "Nature's true noblemen."

GIVING THE PROGENITORS OF FAMILIES THAT HAVE INTERMARRIED WITH THE STOKES FAMILY.

WILLIAM THORNE.

William Thorne, of Dorsetshire, England, was made freeman at Lynn, Mass., May the 2d, 1638, and in the same year had "30 and ten" acres of land apportioned to him there. In 1645 he was in Flushing, Long Island, the original patent of that town being granted by the Dutch Governor, the Hon. William Keift, to him and seventeen others, "Oct. 19th, 1645," as shown in Onderdonk's Manuscript Records in the Long Island Historical Society.

In 1646 William Thorne was granted a plantation lot in Gravesend, L. I. In 1657 he was one of the proprietors of Jamaica, L. I., which had been conveyed to the white settlers in 1656.

His wife's name was probably Sarah (there being no record of it), as the name of Sarah occurs in the families of his two sons. The sons also, in 1712, owned a sloop, "The William and Sarah."

There is but little doubt that William was the ancestor of the Thorne family in the United States—the late emigrants excepted. William Thorne had four sons and one daughter, as follows: ¹William, Jr., born 4-7, 1632, in Dorsetshire, England, who deceased in 1688; ²John, ³Joseph, ⁴Samuel and ⁵Susannah.

In the census of Hempstead, L. I., in 1673, we find an enumeration of William Thorn and his children. From census of 1683, ²William Thorn, Jr., had "150 acres of land, 2 horses, 2 oxen, 2 cows and 3 hogs."

William Thorn, Jr., married Winifred Kay. He died in 1688, and was buried in the burying ground on the hill just above his residence, at Hempstead, Long Island, on the original homestead, which is yet owned by one of the descendants of the family. William, Jr., left a widow, Winifred, and children—³Richard, ⁸Joseph, ⁹William, ¹⁰Elizabeth and ¹¹Margaret. Winifred was buried at Flushing, L. I., February 20th, 1713. ⁸Joseph Thorn married Mary Bowne, born 1660, dau. of John Bowne, a prominent Friend, who was "banished to Holland in 1662, for his religion and harboring Quakers," returning again in 1664. John Bowne was born at Matlock, Derbyshire, England, 3-9, 1627, and died in 1695. He was the son of Thomas Bowne, who was baptized at Matlock, England, 5-25, 1595. John Bowne's wife was Hannah Feake, the dau. of Robert Feake, of Watertown, Mass. In 1682, he owned and lived on a plantation at Middletown, Monmouth county, New Jersey, having removed from Long Island.

JOHN HINCHMAN.

In the year 1675, a census being taken in Flushing, Long Island, John Hinchman was found to be the owner of twenty-five acres of land, two horses, four oxen, four cows, two colts, four hogs and forty sheep.

In the year 1698, another census was taken of the same place, which shows the nativity of the residents, and among the French settlers we have the names of John Hinchman, Sarah his wife, and their children, as follows: ²John, ²James, ²Mercy, ²Mary and ²Sarah, and a negro slave belonging to John Hinchman; also the names of Thomas Hinchman, Miriam, his wife; and two children, Thomas and Sarah. We also find the name of Robert Hinchman in the list of freemen.

In 1699, ²John Hinchman purchased one thousand acres of land in Newton Township, Gloucester County, N. J., of John Hugg. Jr., and Priscilla, his wife. John Hinchman, in his removal from Long Island, brought slaves and other personal property with him to New Jersey. He dealt in real estate, and located several surveys in Gloucester County, N. J. His wife was Sarah Harrison, the dau. of Samuel Harrison, whom he married while a resident of Long Island. He died in 1721, leaving a will.

HUGH COWPERTHWAIT.

Hugh Cowperthwait, a native of England, was born in 1648, and emigrated to Long Island in 1674, and settled at Flushing, where he followed tailoring and taught school. He acquired considerable estate.

He was a minister of good repute in the Society of Friends, as appears from the minutes of Flushing monthly meetings—"A substantial friend, a minister for nearly forty years, and universally beloved." He deceased May the 20th, 1730, and by the minutes of the meeting at Flushing he devised to that body a legacy of £100. He married first in England, Elizabeth ———, who died at Flushing, Long Island, December 5th, 1697. In February, 1698, he obtained a certificate to travel in the New England States, and whilst there married his second wife, Elizabeth ———, who died August 27th, 1707.

JOHN HUGG.

John Hugg, the progenitor of the Hugg family, came from Castle Ellis, in the county of Wexford, Ireland. He was a Friend, as in 1699 he was imprisoned for not paying a tax levied to repair the church at Rosanellis, Queen's county, Ireland. He is said to have brought a large estate with him. He located on Little Timber creek, where it empties into Great Timber creek, a short distance from the Delaware river.

There was a landing upon his estate, where wood, lumber, &c., were loaded in small vessels to be carried away, and hay and other merchandise were delivered for consumption among the inhabitants of that locality. The place where his dwelling stood is claimed as the site of Fort Nassau, which was built by the Dutch in 1623, and was the first settlement by the Europeans on the Delaware river. He remained upon his first location until his death, which occurred in 1706.

|----------------------------|------|---------------------------|
| ² John, Jr., b. | ; m. | , Priscilla Collins, 1st. |
| | m. | , Elizabeth Newbie, 2d. |
| ² Elias, b. | ; m. | , Margaret Collins. |
| ² Joseph, b. | ; m. | , Sarah ———. |

In 1703 he was appointed one of the commissioners to purchase land of the Indians, and to adopt a plan to collect them together in certain locations in the Province of West Jersey. He was appointed Sheriff in 1726, and served in that capacity for a term of four years. He made several locations and purchases of land on Great and Little Timber creeks, and Mantau and Raccoon creeks in Gloucester county, and Alloways creek in Salem county. He deceased in 1730. He was found speechless on the ground near to his dwelling, and died the same day.

JOHN HUGG.

His second wife, Elizabeth Newbie, whom he married in 1714, and the following children survived him—

- ³Mercy, b. ; m. , Thomas Lippincott, 2d wife.
- ³Hannah, b. .
- ³Sarah, b. ; m. , John Heritage.
- ³Priscilla, b. ; m. , Thomas Eayre.
- ³Joseph, b. .

- ³John, b. .
- ³Elias, b. .
- ³Jacob, b. .

²Elias Hugg, son of ¹John Hugg and ————, m. Margaret Collins, dau. of Francis Collins and Sarah Mayham (his first wife).

Children were not found on any record we had access to.

²Elias Hugg inherited the old homestead occupied by his father, and kept a store to supply watermen and lumber dealers with provisions, such as were needed, and when they were detained by wind and tide, tradition says, carousals were not infrequent, whiskey being kept for sale in common with other merchandise in that day in all country stores.

²Joseph Hugg, son of ¹John Hugg and ————, m. Sarah ————, dau. of ————.

Children were—

- ³Samuel, b. ; m. , Mary Collins.
 - ³Joseph, b. .

²Joseph settled at Gloucester Point, as known at that time, 1722, and kept the ferry for several years. He deceased in 1757, leaving but the two children above.

WILLIAM STRATTON.

The Stratton family trace their line of ancestry to William Stratton, of Stratford-upon-Avon, county of Warwick, England, through his two sons, Emanuel and Mark, as the ancestors of the family in New Jersey.

WILLIAM MATLACK.

William Matlack, the progenitor of the Matlack family, came from Cropwell Bishop, Nottinghamshire, England, to America in the ship "Kent," with Dr. Daniel Wills and others, in 1677. He was a carpenter by trade, and is said to have built the first two houses in Burlington, N. J. He married, in 1682, Mary Hancock, who came from Brayles, Warwickshire, England, with her brother Timothy, in the ship "Paradise," in 1681. He was granted one hundred acres of land by Thomas Olive, between the branches of the Pennsaukin creek, in Chester township, adjoining lands of his brother-in-law, Timothy Hancock, and others.

The children of William Matlack and Mary Hancock were—

- ¹John, b. ; m. , Hannah Horner, 1st wife.

 - ⁸Sarah, b. ; m. , Carlile Haines, the son of Richard Haines and Mary Carlile.
- Mary (Hancock) Matlack died in 1728, aged 62 years.

HENRY BURR.

Henry Burr came from England, and settled in Northampton township, Burlington county, N. J. The children of Henry Burr and Elizabeth were seven in number.

- ¹Sarah, b. ; m. 1719, Caleb Haines.
- ²Martha, b. ; m. 1723, Josiah Haines, 1st.
 m. , Timothy Matlack, 2d.

Caleb and Josiah Haines were the sons of John Haines and Esther Borton, the dau. of John and Ann Borton.

RICHARD LIPPINCOTT.

Richard Lippincott and Abigail, his wife, the progenitors of the Lippincott family, came from Stone House, a parish in Devonshire, England. They were among the settlers of the colony of Massachusetts Bay, and Richard was made freeman May the 13th, 1640.

In 1641, Richard and Abigail, his wife, resided in Dorchester, where their eldest son, Remembrance, was born and baptized in the seventh month of that year. They removed to Boston, where the son John was born in 1644. In 1651, he withdrew from the church. In 1652, he returned to England, and in the next year his son Restore was born at Plymouth. He was imprisoned in the jail near the Castle of Exeter in February, 1655. He was living in Plymouth, as stated in Sewell's history, and testified with others against the acts of the Mayor, and the falsehood of the charges brought against them. In the same year his son Freedom was born. His daughter Increase was born in 1657, and his son Jacob in 1660, while residing at Stone House, near Plymouth. In 1660, he was again imprisoned by the Mayor of Plymouth, and his release was effected by the solicitations of Margaret Fell and others, through Charles II granting liberation of Friends. Richard and family again removed to New England, where Preserved was born in 1663, who died in infancy. A patent being granted to a company of Friends from Long Island in 1665, Richard was induced, with others from Rhode Island, to become a patentee with the residents on Shrewsbury river. He was thus a member of the first English colony in New Jersey, in which he was the largest shareholder. In 1669, he was a deputy and overseer, and the next year an overseer of Shrewsbury town. His residence was on Passequeneiqua creek, a branch of South Shrewsbury river, northeast of the residence of his son-in-law, Samuel Dennis, which was three-fourths of a mile east of the town of Shrewsbury. He obtained a grant of a thousand acres of land in the Fenwick Colony, the title being conveyed in 1676. He deceased November the 25th, 1683. He was the owner of several slaves which were set free under the will of his widow Abigail, who deceased in 1697. The children of Richard Lippincott and Abigail, were as follows:

John Borton died in 1687, leaving a will dated 5-28, 1687.
He names his two sons and enumerates six daughters.

THOMAS LANCASTER.

Thomas Lancaster, in or about June, 1711, emigrated from England to America. He married Phebe Wordell the 19th day of the 8th month, 1725, at Wrightstown Meeting of Friends, in Pennsylvania. He was a member of Richland Monthly Meeting of Friends, and became a distinguished minister in that Society. The above meeting granted him a certificate to travel and preach at Barbadoes and other parts in the West Indies. Having performed the services for which he was liberated to the relief of his mind, and feeling that his mission was accomplished, he embarked for home, but was taken sick, died, and was buried at sea sometime during 1750. It is here to be remarked, that several, who felt themselves called to those parts, laid down their lives in truth's service.

John Lancaster, the son of Thomas Lancaster and Phebe (Wordell) Lancaster, married Elizabeth Barlow, 11th mo., 15th, A. D. 1753, at Gwynedd Monthly Meeting of Friends, in Pennsylvania.

Ann Lancaster, the daughter of John Lancaster and Elizabeth (Barlow) Lancaster, married David Stokes, 4th mo., 15th, 1784. David Stokes was the son of John Stokes and Hannah (Stogdelle) Stokes. (See page 18.)

Phebe Wordell, who married Thomas Lancaster, was the daughter of John Wordell, who emigrated from Wales. He was a minister in the Society of Friends, and came with his daughter Phebe to North America, and settled at Boston. They removed from Boston to Wrightstown, Pa., and became members of Wrightstown Meeting. Phebe departed this life at the residence of her son, John Lancaster, at Richland, Pennsylvania, in the 96th year of her age.

JOHN JARRETT.

John Jarrett, of Germantown (alias Garrit), the progenitor of the Jarrett family, married Mary Lukens about 1st m., 1712, the daughter of John Lukens, who emigrated from Criffilt, Germany, in 1684.

There seems to be a question of doubt as to the nativity of John Jarrett; some claim he came from Holland, and others from the Highlands of Scotland.

John Jarrett, the son of John Jarrett and Mary (Lukens) Jarrett, married Alice Conard. William Jarrett, the son of John Jarrett and Alice (Conard) Jarrett, married Ann Lukens. Tacy

Jarrett, the daughter of William Jarrett and Ann (Lukens) Jarrett, married, on the 18th day of the 10th mo., A. D., 1816, Charles Stokes, the son of David Stokes and Ann (Lancaster) Stokes. (See page 37.)

C. S.

JOHN HILYARD.

John Hilyard, the progenitor of this branch of the Hilyard family, married Martha Devonish, the daughter of Bernard Devonish, one of the first settlers, and owner of large proprietary rights at Burlington, N. J.; and came as a passenger in the ship "Kent," with Thomas Stokes and others, and landed at Burlington on the 20th of June, 1677. The aforesaid Bernard Devonish was also evidently in company with Thomas Stokes (the immediate progenitor) at the time of subscribing to the "Concessions and Agreements of the Proprietors, Freeholders and Inhabitants of the Province of West New Jersey in America," as their names are together in that old and interesting list. (See "Grants and Concessions in Carteret's time, between 1664 and 1682," page 411.)

Edward Hilyard, the son of John Hilyard and Martha (Devonish) Hilyard, married Sarah Haines, 1st mo., 21st, 1733, the daughter of Richard Haines and Mary (Carlisle) Haines, who was said to be the daughter of the chief of the Delaware branch of the Lenni Lenapes. Richard was the second son of Richard Haines and Margaret, the progenitors of the Haines family, who came from the parish of Aynhoe, in Northamptonshire, England, in 1682.

Jacob Hilyard, the son of Edward Hilyard and Sarah (Haines) Hilyard, married Martha Robinson.

William Hilyard, the son of Jacob Hilyard and Martha (Robinson) Hilyard, married Hannah Rowland, the daughter of Benjamin Rowland and Mary (George) Rowland, of Abington, Pennsylvania.

Martha Hilyard, the daughter of William Hilyard and Hannah (Rowland) Hilyard, married Jarrett Stokes on the 9th day of the 4th mo., A. D. 1848. Jarrett Stokes was the son of Charles Stokes and Tacy (Jarrett) Stokes. (See page 94.)

The Irish branch of the Stokes family were from Devonshire, England. The first settler was a military character, and was buried at Arkeaton, in the county of Limerick, and who settled in that county about 1580. His son, John, of Dunnroylan House, county of Limerick, about the year 1622, married Sarah O'Connell, in the county of Kerry, and the lineage shows that his descendants continued to hold positions in the army, as well as civil offices, and intermarried with the military families, amongst whom was the celebrated Field Marshal Lacey, in the service of Maria Theresa, and also with the family of Fitzgeralds. Fitzgerald's history of this shire styles them the ancient and renowned family of "Lacy." We have not any line that we can trace down, but find in the family men of notoriety, such as Sir George Gabriel Stokes, the great mathematician, and the eminent Dr. Stokes, of the Eighteenth century. The coat of arms of the Irish branch of the family differs somewhat from that of the English branch, and is as follows: Gu. a Lion rampant, erm double Gnewed. For Stokes on an escutcheon of pretence. For Barrett, Ar on a bend. Az, between three Lozenge buckles. Gu tongue in fesse on amulet for difference.

Crest, A lion rampant, double gnewed erm.

Motto, Vict omnia pertinax Vert.

This will suffice to show that the Irish branch of the Stokes family was no inconsiderable part of it, and was a branch of the original family, which was of Norman origin.

James Stokes, who came to America as a British soldier, and was taken prisoner at the battle of Monmouth, was the progenitor of another branch of the Stokes family. At the close of the Revolutionary War, he took the oath of allegiance to the "Republic," located at Germantown, and established himself as a merchant and took an active part in the affairs of the new Republic. But we are not able to trace his line of descendants. He came from Seven Oaks, Kent county, England. He was the son of James Stokes and Sarah (Harvey) Stokes. He married Sarah Magill, who bore him seven children.

The third Stokes branch came from Ireland about 1876, and have the characteristics of that nationality.

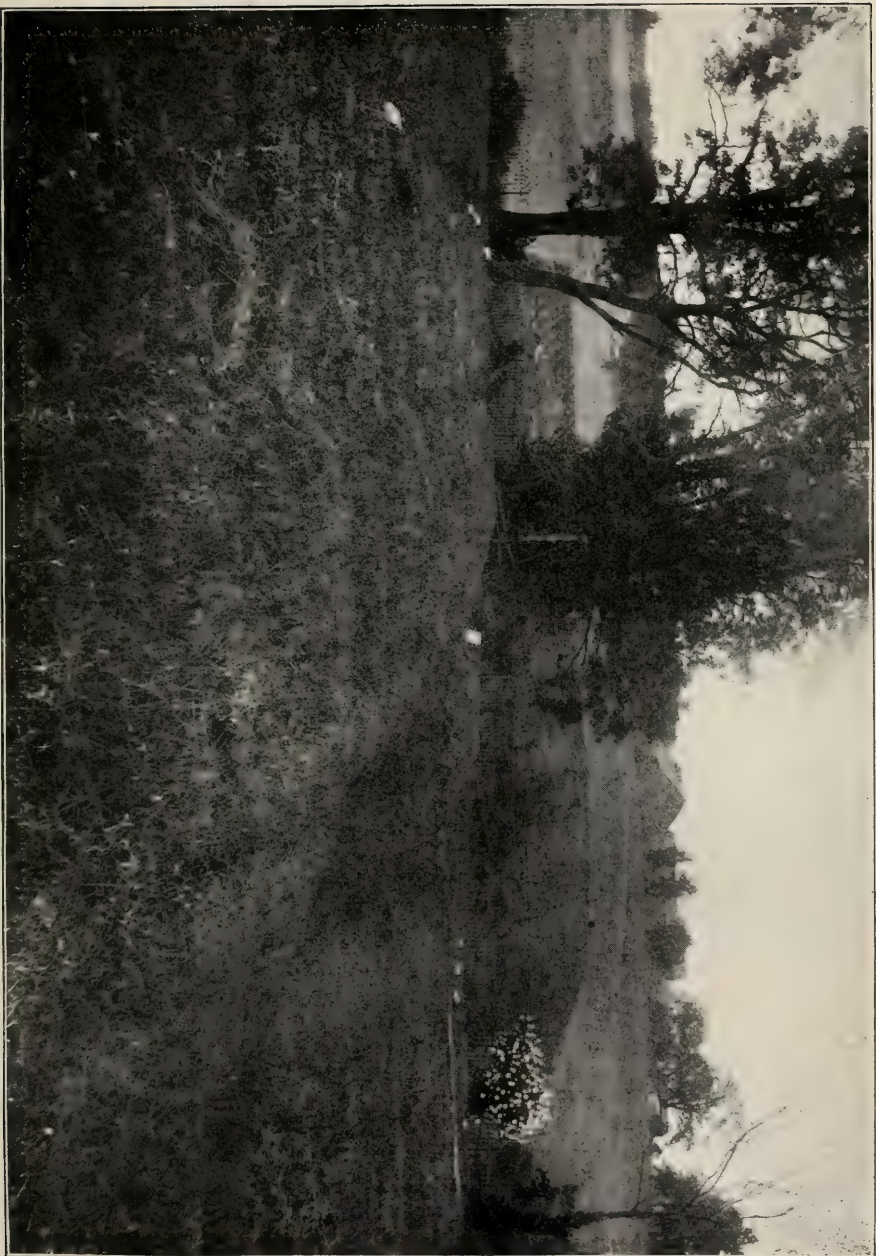

"OLD STOKINGHAM."

"Stokingham" is in Willingborough township, Burlington county, N. J. The site is an ideal one, situate fronting on the northerly side, forty feet above, overlooking the beautiful Rancocas river. The original house was erected by Thomas Harding, the first located under the proprietors of a tract of land comprising two hundred acres. In this house the first Friends' meetings at Rancocas were held until a regular Meeting House was built. In the record of the monthly meeting of Friends, held in Burlington, in 1681, the following minute is to be found: "It is agreed that the meeting at Ancocas be held at the house of Thomas Harding." John Stokes, the third child of the first American ancestors, Thomas and Mary (Bernard) Stokes, when taking unto himself Elizabeth Green to be his wife, purchased the said tract of land from Thomas Harding. There his children were born. His son John, who married Hannah Stogdelle, in 1740, succeeded his father in the title; and his third child, David, who married Ann Lancaster, on the 15th day of the 4th month, 1784, succeeded his father in the title. David's first child, Israel Stokes, who married Sarah Borton, succeeded his father in the title. Israel's fifth child, Israel Stokes, who married Caroline Green, succeeded his father in the title. And Israel's first child, Annie Stokes, who married Tylee B. Engle, succeeded her father in the title, who owns and resides at the present time with her worthy husband and interesting family at "Old Stokingham."

"FRIENDS' GRAVE YARD AT RANCOCAS, N. J."

The illustration of the Friends' Grave Yard at Rancocas, Burlington county, N. J., shown in the accompanying engraving, outlines two old rows of Stokes graves, where lie interred all that was mortal of all the old Rancocas Stokeses; and it was always claimed by the venerable Charles Stokes, of Rancocas, that all that was mortal of the original ancestors, Thomas and Mary (Bernard) Stokes, was interred here. The buildings in the distance are on the original home-site of Dr. Daniel Wills, of colonial fame. The ravine between the grave yard and buildings is the old grist mill pond, said to be the first grist mill in New Jersey.

COPY OF A LETTER FROM ELIZABETH COLES TO HER SON, JOHN GREEN.

Loving son, John Green: My kind token, with your father remembered unto you and to your Brother and Sister Stokes, and to their children, hoping to Almighty God for your good health, as blessed be God wee are all of us at this present writing. Whereof this is to let you understand that we received your kind tokens as you sent over—six pair of gloves and fore skinns, for the which we give many thanks, and loving son I have sent you a small token of our loves—itt a cuppel of shifts & a pare of cloath briches & a pare of worsted stockings and one hallon pillow drawer, all these for yourself; and I have sent your sister Stokes one shift for herself, one hallon pillow drawer & one pare of worsted stockings for her self and one slip of blue worsted to knitt your little boy a pare of stockings, and one slip of blue worsted to do what you will with. And I have sent you three nutmegg, one for John Green for his sister & one for her husband and John Green and his sister I have sent etct (each) of them one shilling a piece. And his sister fore children every one a silver groat. And your Aunt Betty Coales hath sent you a shilling to divide together; these small tokens will be sowed up in your shirt sleeve; these small tokens your mother sent herself. And I have sent your sister three books as you sent for; but I was forced to send to London for them, and son I would desire you to send me over one buck skin, a one as you sent for me, for your brother Thomas hath that of mine and your father wants such a one for best briches. Sarah Champion remembers her kind love to you & to your sister Stokes & hath sent your sister Stokes a pare oi her weden Gloves; they are put in John Green's briches pockits—so no more at present. I shall rest and remain your ever loving mother, Elizabeth Coles, and that little note you sent mee of tokens so kindly that I shall expt itt as long as I live—Pray son lett mee hear from you as often as you can.

L. F.

The above letter of Elizabeth Coles to her son, John Green, is proof positive beyond cavil, who the mother of Elizabeth Green was. That her parents were not Edward Green and Annie, as some of the family contend, is shown in the Secretary's office at Trenton. Her father there is recorded as Thomas Green; and the letter proves the claim of the descendants of John that they were related to Elizabeth Green, who married John Stokes.

These two families were not found until after the MSS. went to the press, and are referred to page 56 for ancestry.

Children were—

⁷Marion H., b. _____; m. _____, Charles H. Sevan.

John W., b. _____; m. _____, Gertrude C. Gondy.

⁷Alice W., b. _____; deceased.

Edward Harris Stokes, son of Samuel and Marion (Conrow) Stokes, of Moorestown, Burlington county, New Jersey, was born the 22d day of the 6th month, 1824, and departed this life the 17th day of the 2d mo., 1900, at Woodlawn, his residence, in the city of Trenton, N. J.

He left his home in 1840, and settled in Trenton, where for several years he was a leading photographer, and being a man of rare judgment foresaw the rise in real estate, and invested largely therein, thereby realizing an ample fortune.

His ability and sterling integrity as a young man won for him the respect and confidence of his fellow citizens, from whose hands he filled many positions of honor and trust.

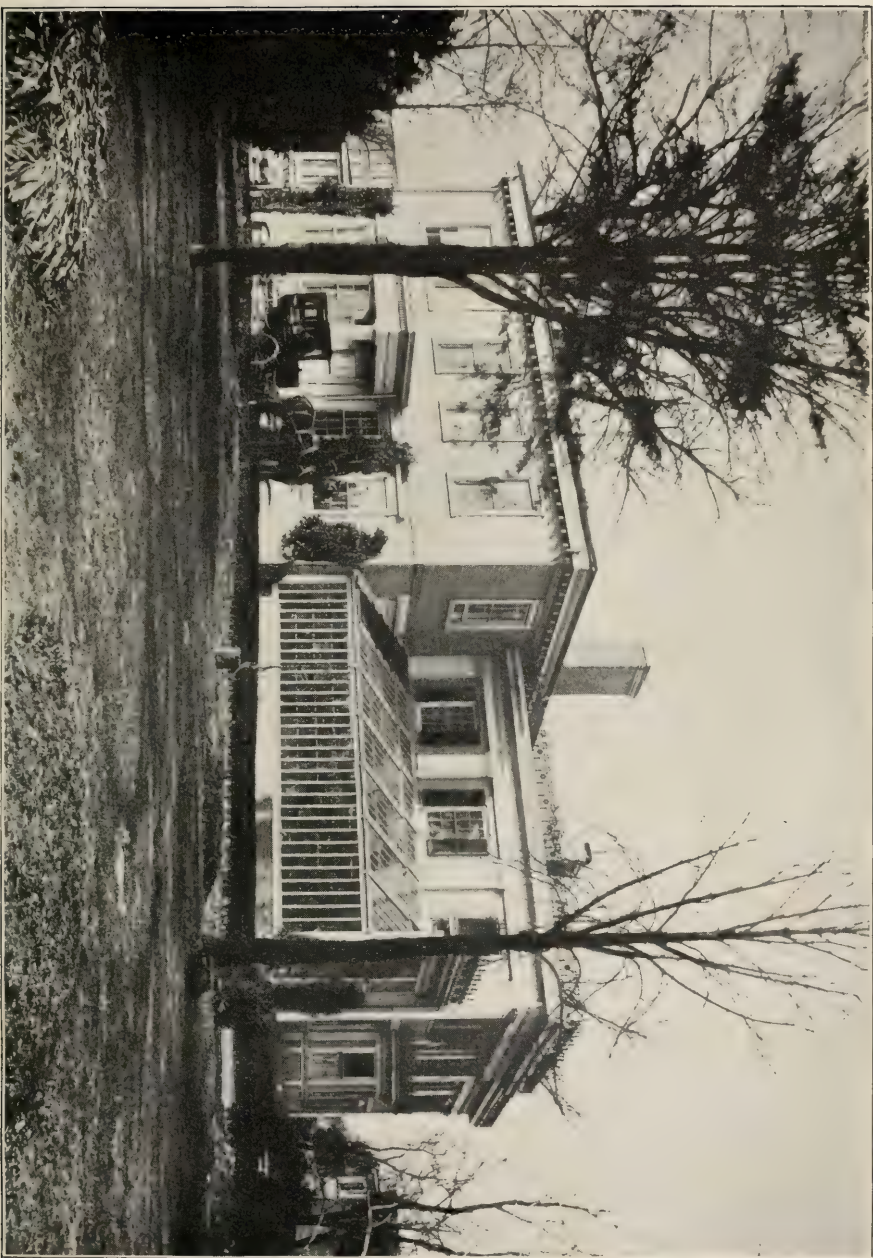

In 1860 he married Permelia S. Wood, daughter of ex-Mayor Joseph Wood (neice of the late Benjamin Wood and Fernando Wood, of New York), by whom he had six children. He was an ideal man in home-life, a devoted husband, an indulgent father, and a pleasant host. His distinguished old home, added to his own congeniality, drew many friends of all classes to seek his society, his charity and benevolence being familiar to those who knew him, and while a man of large wealth, was absolutely without ostentation. Industry, frugality and temperance, together with a bright mind, opened the doors of success to him.

He was an old and popular member of the New Jersey Historical Society, and his own private library occupied a spacious room in "Old Woodlawn," which was the delight of enthusiastic book-lovers.

In personal appearance and bearing he was prepossessing, and his natural dignity did not detract from his amiable disposition or make him unapproachable, and his large wealth did not change the even tenor of his ways or make him ostentatious.

He died as he lived, a man greatly beloved by all who knew him.

RESIDENCE OF EDWARD H. STOKES.

Trenton, N. J.

WOODLAWN, TRENTON, NEW JERSEY.

Woodlawn, situated in Trenton, New Jersey, the home of the late Edward H. Stokes, and now in the possession of his son, Edward A. Stokes, was built in 1720. It is a large brick and frame structure, the brick coming from England on sailing vessels as ballast, set amid beautiful surroundings, which include trees known to be 200 years old, and has an eventful history. The wide colonial doorways and long halls, the great chimneys and the broad staircase bring to mind memories of the long ago. The house was once owned by Mahlon Stacey and Governor Morris, of Pennsylvania, from whose control it passed into the hands of the Trents, for whom Trenton was named; then followed Governor Cox as owner and was known originally as "Kingsbury," and later as "Bloomsbury." Three daughters of John Cox graced the home of noted men after their residence here, uniting their fortunes with Edward Stevens, the great inventor; Senator Chestnut, of South Carolina, and Mr. Horace Binney, a leading Philadelphian of olden days.

Next followed as owners James M. Redmand, whose daughter married ex-Mayor Hewitt, of New York City; Governor Price and ex-Mayor Wood, of Trenton, the latter's daughter now the widow of the late Edward H. Stokes. Considered in the light of history, Woodlawn is one of the many links connecting the centuries, a landmark quaint and olden of the long ago.
